$1.50 Per Year In Advance

MOKENA TAVERN LICENSE $100; 3 TAVERNS LIMIT

The Mokena village board at their meeting Tuesday evening fixed the local saloon licenses at $100 per year, payable in semi-annual installments. The board also agreed on the following regulations to be incorporated in the saloon license ordinance:

There shall be only three taverns in Mokena. No license shall be issued to any party not a resident of the village of Mokena.

The board further agreed that the opening and closing hours of such taverns shall be from 7 a. m., to 11 p. m., on week days. Taverns shall be closed Sunday morning, but may operate from 1 p. m. to 11 p. m.

All curtains, signs or other obstructions shall be removed from the windows so that a full and unobstructed view of such taverns may be had from the street day or night.

The village board will meet in an adjourned meeting on Tuesday evening, March 20th to pass the tavern or saloon license ordinance and the new license will go into effect on April first.

NEW LENOX TAVERNS MUST PAY $400 COUNTY LICENSE

The Will County Board of Supervisors fixed the tavern license fee at $400 per year for all taverns outside of the city of Joliet and outside of incorporated villages in the county.

New Lenox being an unincorporated village, all taverns located there will be subject to the $400 county license fee.

FRANKFORT SETS SALOON LICENSE FEES AT $350

The Frankfort village board at their monthly meeting held Monday evening passed a saloon license ordinance requiring a saloon license of $350 a year for each saloon operating in that village. The board limited the number of saloons or taverns which may operate in the limits to 3.

The opening and closing hours have been set from 6 a. m. to 12 o'clock midnight and on Sundays from 1 p. m. to 10 p. m.

5 TAVERNS LIMIT IN ORLAND

At Orland Park the village board has fixed the tavern license at $150 per year and limited the number of saloons or taverns to five. The opening and closing hours are from 6 a. m., to 1 a. m., week days and on Sunday.

TINLEY BOARD HAS NOT ACTED ON TAVERN LICENSES

The Tinley Park village board has not taken up the tavern license matter since the new state liquor law went into effect. Tinley taverns are operating under a $125 license adopted sometime ago, but no changes have been made in this fee of late.

Elmer Sopher Dies

At New Lenox

Elmer J. Sopher, aged 35 years, died Monday morning at his home in New Lenox following a lingering illness.

Surviving are the widow, Bertha; a daughter, Anna Mae; two sons, Robert and Elmer; his mother, Mrs. Fred Rockenbach and six sisters.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, the Rev. Walter Macpherson of St. John's Universalist church of Joliet officiating. Burial took place in the Maplewood cemetery in New Lenox.

There Will Be No Township Election

Township Election

There will be no township elections this spring due to a new law passed last year by the Illinois legislature. The regular township elections will be held next spring.

At first a question arose in Frankfort township as to how a vacancy was to be filled when the report was current that R. Hensel, Mokena village trustee had resigned from office of Justice of the Peace of Frankfort township, but the records of County Clerk Albion Delander do not show that such a resignation was received and the records of Henry Geuther, Jr., town clerk of Frankfort township, also fail to show that such resignation was received by the town clerk.

Frankfort Men's Endeavor Club Hears Vital Message

The Men's Endeavor Club of the Frankfort M. E. Church held a very profitable meeting Monday evening.

Rev. George Woodman, pastor of the Christian Church of Chicago Heights was the guest speaker and delivered a peppy message on the need today of the spirit of the forefathers who laid the foundations of our great nation. He stressed the need for more brotherly love and co-operation.

Following the regular program of the club, brief remarks were made by the following candidates for public office: Senator R. J. Barr, attorney Edward R. Nadelhoffer, Pence B. Orr, Robert W. Martin, County Supt. of Schools, August Maue, James Bell, Senator Barr, August Maue and Pence Orr joined as new members of the club.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Chas. Schoenherr Formerly of Frankfort Dies

Charles Schoenherr, former resident of Frankfort died Monday at the Kankakee Asylum hospital following a siege of pneumonia.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Schoenherr and was born in Frankfort Feb. 4, 1879. He resided here all his life until within the last few years when he was a patient in Kankakee. His mother died about a year ago in the Old People's Home in Bensonville.

Funeral services were held for Mr. Schoenherr in St. Peter's Evangelical church in Frankfort Wednesday afternoon with Rev. G. Gerhold officiating. Burial was in the Scheer cemetery.

There are no immediate relatives.

Town Clerk Of Green Garden Weds

Miss Elsie L. Jacobi daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jacobi of Peotone Township, and George F. Bobzin son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bobzin of Green Garden, were married Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. Oscar Luthe, pastor of the St. John's church of North Peotone. The bride was attired in a gown of eggshell satin in crepe and carried an arm bouquet of white bridal roses.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was held in the Jacobi home.

Mrs. Bobzin was graduated from the Peotone High school with the class of 1924. Later she attended the Illinois State Normal University in Normal. She has taught for the past nine years.

Mr. Bobzin is serving his third term as Town Clerk of Green Garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobzin will be at home to their friends after March 15th in Green Garden Township.

Mokena Couple Married In Chicago

Clyde Knudson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Knudson of Mokena, and Miss Elizabeth Lynk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lynk, formerly of Mokena, now of Florida, were quietly united in marriage Friday evening, March 2nd in Chicago, in the parsonage of the Peoples Church with the Rev. Preston Bradley, pastor of the church officiating. The ceremony was witnessed by the groom's brother Clifford and his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Knudson will make their home at 426 N. Waller Avenue, Austin.

Mr. Knudson is an optometrist and is employed in the optical section in the Marshall Field store in Chicago.

Will County Tax Penalty Date Extended

At a meeting of the Will County Board of Supervisors held Monday, the board adopted the following resolution directing county treasurer Herbert Jones to extend the tax penalty of 1 per cent deadline from May 1st to June 1st:

WHEREAS, the extension of the taxes for the revenue year 1933 has been delayed to such an extent that it is now impossible to complete such extension and deliver the books to the County Treasurer in time to enable said County Treasurer to send out the tax bills and commence the collection until after May 1, 1934; and,

WHEREAS, in accordance with the present Revenue Act a penalty of 1% on the first installment of said 1933 tax attaches on all such installments remaining unpaid on May 1st, 1934; and,

WHEREAS, it is the desire of this Board to relieve the taxpayers of Will County from such additional burden.

NOW THEREFORE, be it hereby resolved that the County Collector be and he is, hereby authorized and directed to defer the date of the attaching of said 1% penalty until the 1st day of June, 1934.

The board passed this resolution to save the tax payers the one per cent penalty fee as the tax bills will not be ready for collection before or after May first due to the delay occasioned in spreading the taxes by the temporary injunction suit filed by the Will County Tax Payers League and which injunction was dissolved by Circuit Judge Wilson last week.

Ruth Brannon In Spirited Fight For Congressional Seat

Miss Ruth Brannon of Manhattan, Democratic Candidate for Congress visited Mokena in the interests of her candidacy Wednesday morning.

Miss Brannon is a very charming and capable young woman and her many friends are plugging for her with the determination to secure her nomination at the primary April 10. Miss Brannon is well educated and a gifted orator.

She is true to her convictions and is using as her slogan "Roosevelt is doing his part—I'll do mine."

Aug. Maue Says

School Crisis is Bad

In an address before the Men's Endeavor Club of the Frankfort M. E. church Monday evening, Will County Supt. of Schools, August Maue gave a graphic word picture of the acute crisis in which the public school system finds itself today. He stated that over a million and a half children are unable to attend public schools in the United States due to the fact that many public schools have been compelled to close due to lack of school funds. In Alabama two thirds of the public schools are closed. He showed that southern Illinois has been very hard hit. Many teachers in that section have been carrying on despite the fact that they have had no pay for the last 3 years. Supt. Maue declared that the state owes Will County $129,000 for the past three years. The last money received from the states attorney's office was in 1928 when about $2000 was received from that source.

Supt. Maue said if legislative aid did not soon come, about thirty schools in Will County will have to close. The reduction of the assessed valuation of real estate in the county has caused a big reduction in the amount of taxes received.

MOKENA TO GO ON NEW TIME

The Mokena village board took up the matter of having the village adopt daylight saving time beginning with next month. As all surrounding villages have adopted daylight saving time, the board felt Mokena should also go on the new time, but it was finally decided to let the business men of the village handle the matter.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Mokena, Ill., March 6, 1934.

Editor News-Bulletin: Another election is at hand with new issues at stake, but with the same old combination leading them.

I have been living in Mokena over ten years and in that time I have noted the growth of the "Dick Barr-Tom Donovan" domination, until it has become neither a Democratic party or a Republican party, but rather a "Donovan-Barr party".

Mr. Voter it is up to you at the primary April 10 and I would advise Republican Voters to vote and use their influence for the nomination of Don C. Hall for State Senator on the Republican Ticket, whom I have known for many years and believe him qualified for the office in every respect and in the Democratic Primary Francis J. Loughran for state central committeeman for the 11th District. Study your ticket and men. Do not vote for any Boss controlled candidates.

CHARLES L. SYLVESTER, Democrat.

Sacred Concert At St. John's Church Mokena, Sunday

The big event at the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena this coming Sunday evening will be the musical and recital to be given by Junior Choral Club of Joliet under the direction of Chastine C. Masone. The chorus will consist of 50 voices. The guest artists will be: John Holmists Violinist Mrs. J. P. Sprivey Reader

The program will be inspiring, entertaining and educational. The Junior Choral Club are highly endorsed by pulpit and press.

The Woman's Union of St. John's is sponsoring the program and extends a cordial invitation to the public.

JUDGE HUNTER TO HEAR WOLF RD. INJUNCTION

The injunction suit which the school directors of the Cleveland school district started sometime ago, will come up for a final hearing before Circuit Judge Hunter of Kankakee county March 15th at 9:30 a. m. Judge Hunter will have the hearing of the case. A. H. Krusemark representing Will County will ask that the temporary injunction of the school directors against the extension of the Wolf Road right of way by the school property to the Lincoln Highway, be dissolved.

Soon as all legal matters have been settled for the Wolf road right of way, bids will be advertised for and the paving of Wolf road completed to the Lincoln Highway.

NEW LAW TO CHANGE VILLAGE ELECTIONS

According to the new election statute for cities and villages the election of three trustees and clerk will be held this year on the third Tuesday in April for a term of one year instead of two. This will necessitate the election of all the trustees and clerk next year, for the regular two year term, and will provide for a regular village election in each odd numbered year thereafter instead of every year.

This year the terms of three trustees and village clerk expire. These offices will be filled for one year and at the expiration of their terms in 1935, the re-elected officers will serve the regular two year term. The period for filing petitions is up March 13th.

Woman's Club Is Organized At Tinley With 23 Members

The Tinley Park Woman's Club, affiliated with the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs in the 3rd congressional district, was organized last Thursday, March 1st. The meeting was held in the Tinley Park M. E. church at 2 p. m. Twenty-three women signed the membership sheet. The object and policies of the Federation were explained along with a general outline of the working plans of this great organization, the largest and strongest woman's federation in the world, numbering two million members in the United States alone. Foreign affiliations bring the total membership to about three million.

The Tinley Park Woman's Club will elect their officers in April to keep in step with the district and state Federation. Mrs. Chas. Nielsen, Mrs. R. J. Hug, and Mrs. Henry Wyman comprise the nominating committee. The temporary officers are: Organizer and president, Mrs. Wallace B. Combs; secretary, Mrs. Leah Winsor; treasurer, Mrs. Anna Hopman.

The charter list will be open thru the month of March after which application blanks and fee will be required to become a member. The final preliminary meeting will be in the form of a get-acquainted luncheon on Wednesday, March 14th. Federated Clubs in towns around Tinley Park have been invited to send representatives. Mrs. Fred Waterman, the president of the 3rd district will be an honored guest. Mrs. Waterman will explain in full the requirements of clubs and individuals belonging to the I. F. W. C.

The women of Tinley Park are cordially invited to become members and it is hoped many will do so before the charter list is closed April first. The luncheon will be held in the English Methodist church. Make reservations to Mrs. Edmond Moss by Tuesday, March 13th.

The state board meeting of the I. F. W. C., was held at Federation Headquarters March 6 and 7. Only state officers, district presidents, department chairmen are eligible to attend this meeting.

Cattle Are Nearly Electrocuted When Stanchions Are Charged

Cattle in the barn on the farm of Arthur Guether on route 51 north of Frankfort came near being electrocuted when a short in the electric wiring of the barn caused the steel stanchions in which the cattle were fastened to become heavily charged. One cow choked to death when she got down and began to struggle.

OTTO HERSCHBACH WITHDRAWS FROM RACE

Otto B. Herschbach of Frankfort who had announced himself as a Republican Candidate for the office of Treasurer of Will County, has withdrawn from the race.

He to attend this unusual treat of sacred music. No admission will be charged. A free will offering will be taken.

Would-Be Kidnapper Under $25,000 Bond

Unable to supply $25,000 bond, James Lacey alias Norman Wyman was sent back to his Cook county jail cell Monday to await a hearing in felony court April 17th on the charge that he attempted to kidnap Emanuel P. Adler of Davenport, Ia., newspaper publisher and banker.

The prosecutor, John Phillips, explained that an investigation was under way to determine whether others were involved with Lacey and Fred Mayo, and Judge Frank M. Padden agreed to delay the hearing Mayo, who confessed and implicated Lacey the day after the attack on Adler in the Morrison hotel in Chicago, was found hanged in a police station cell.

Tinley Park Legion Aux. Unit

Mrs. Lester N. Stoltenberg, Publicity Chairman

As March 17th has been designated "Library Day", Tinley Park Unit No. 615 of the American Legion Auxiliary, under the direction of its Community Service Committee, will conduct a drive for children's books during the week, March 10th to March 17th for the Tinley Park School Library.

In order to succeed in this venture it will be necessary to have the whole hearted support of the entire community and it is hoped that everyone will co-operate with us and donate any old or new books which are no longer of any use to them. Of course it is understood that children are not interested in regular novels but the Librarian can sort out those books which cannot be used in the library and exchange them for usable books.

As the welfare of the children of our schools is always uppermost in our hearts, we hope that everyone will do all they can to assist us in this worthy cause.

The undersigned committee will be pleased to receive the books or they may be left at Dini's or Vogt's store and everyone will be given due credit for all the books donated.

THE PARABLES OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:31-33, 44-52.

GOLDEN TEXT—Of the increase of his government and peace, there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this.—Isaiah 9:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Story Jesus Told.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Story Picture of the Kingdom's Success.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Our Religion Means to Us.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Pictures of the Kingdom.

In this chapter of Matthew the "mysteries" of the kingdom are unfolded (v. 11). By "mystery" in the Scriptures is meant truth undiscoverable by human reason, made known by revelation. The teaching set forth in these parables sets forth the admixture of moral and spiritual interests which characterize the period between Christ's rejection and his triumphant kingdom.

I. The Mustard Seed (vv. 31, 32).

1. Its unimportant beginning (v. 31). It begins as the least of all seeds. Not only was Christ, the king, of humble parentage, but his disciples were unlettered fishermen.

2. Its vigorous growth (v. 32). Though small at its inception, the work inaugurated by Christ, has become wide in extent and mighty in power.

3. Its lodging capacity (v. 32). The birds which find lodging in the tree represent predatory individuals who have found shelter in the church but are not part of it. The birds which lodge in the branches are the "fowls" which devour the seed that fell by the wayside (v. 4).

II. The Leavened Meal (v. 33).

1. The meal. Meal in the Scriptures means something nutritious and wholesome. Examples of its character and use are found in Gen. 18:6; I Kings 4:22; II Kings 4:41. Also it was used in one of the sweet savor offerings which typified Jesus Christ (Lev. 2:13 R. V.).

2. The woman. The woman is the administrator of the home. Her responsibility is to take the bread provided by the head of the home and prepare and distribute it to the children. Observe:

a. Her act. She hid the leaven in the meal.

b. Its issue. It leavened the meal. The meal was not turned into leaven but was affected by the leaven.

3. The leaven. In the Scripture leaven is invariably a type of evil (Exod 12:15, Matt. 16:8, 12; I Cor. 5:6-8; Gal. 5:8, 9). The teaching of this parable, therefore, is that in this age the truth of God and the wholesome institutions established by God would be corrupted by error, worldliness, and unbelief. The woman representing the administrator of affairs in the world would introduce false doctrine and thus corrupt the children's bread.

III. The Hidden Treasure (v. 44).

1. The field (v. 38). Christ's own interpretation makes this to be the world.

2. The treasure. This doubtless means Israel, the chosen people (Ps. 135:4; Deut. 7:6-8).

3. The purchaser. This represents Jesus Christ (John 3:16).

4. The purchase price (I Pet. 1:13, 19). This was the precious blood of Jesus Christ, God's beloved Son.

IV. The Merchantman Seeking Goodly Pearls (vv. 45, 46).

1. The merchantman is Christ (Luke 19:10). The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost.

2. The purchase price (Phil. 2:6-8). Christ impoverished himself in order to purchase the pearl of great price.

3. The pearl of great price (Col. 1:18). This is not Jesus Christ but the Church purchased by his blood.

V. The Dragnet (v. 47-50).

1. The sea. Sea in the Scripture denotes people and multitudes (Dan. 7:3; Rev. 17:15).

2. The dragnet cast into the sea (v. 47). This means the sowing of the Word by the Son of Man (v. 37).

3. The dragnet drawn to shore when full (v. 48). When God's purpose is made full concerning the present age, an account will be made.

4. The separation (vv. 48, 49). This separation is made by the angels, and will take place at the end of the age.

5. The destiny (vv. 49-50). The angels, God's ministers, shall separate the wicked from among the just and shall cast them into the furnace of fire where there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. The good shall be set aside for the pleasure and service of the Lord.

Love One Another

St. John says: "Brethren, let us love one another, for love is of God." Matthew Arnold says a beautiful thing on the same matter, but from a different angle. "Brethren," he says, in effect, "let us love one another, for we have each other for such a short time."

Liberty

The sweetest word in the language, next to love, is liberty. God and his angels respect the perfect freedom of man.

MARJORIE DUNCAN

THE THIN, SCRAWNY NECK

SINCE rounded (but not too round) contours are the fashion this season, one hears many complaints of thin, scrawny necks. These usually belong to underweight individuals and a general gain of avoirdupois is recommended.

Deep breathing exercises are especially beneficial in rounding out the contours of neck and shoulders. And any exercises that move the arms, shoulders and chest will help the neck muscles, too.

If you have any young children about the house, buy two soap sets for blowing bubbles and indulge in this delightful childish game. It is splendid for your spirits and for keeping the contour of the neck firm and young.

Whistling is also good and you can confine it to the privacy of your own room if you agree with the college professor who pronounced all whistlers morose. Even gum-chewing has its compensations: it exercising the throat muscles and the writer hereby sanctions the practice, providing it is done in private.

Here you have the simple exercises that will help you without making you too aware of the fact that you are exercising.

Now for the actual neck exercises. Slowly drop your head forward on your chest, as far as possible. Now just as slowly raise and drop as far back between the shoulder blades as you can. Repeat ten times. Turn the head as far to the left as possible, forward, to the right and front. Repeat six times.

Now for the massage with a rich cream. Use a ready-prepared skinfood for the purpose. Or, make one at home using equal parts of olive oil, lanolin and cocoa butter. Melt the lanolin and cocoa butter in order to measure quantities. Pour into a clean container. Stir until a creamy consistency is achieved. The molding and massage movements should be firm but gentle. Avoid stretching or pulling the skin. Beginning at shoulder blades, press and lift, using the palm and fingers of right hand on left side and vice versa. Then starting at the center, work around to the back with seven short, distinct movements, using right hand on left side and left on right. Allow the cream to remain a long as possible, preferably overnight if you are doing this at bedtime. Once a week apply compresses soaked in warm olive oil and allow to remain for about a half hour. Then mold as instructed above. Follow by patting with a mild astringent.

BODY BEAUTY BATH

FACE, hands and neck are, of course, the parts that suffer most from the trying and drying effects of winter's weather. The skin on the rest of the body does, too, even if to a slightly lesser degree.

Every night before retiring use a little cream: oil for hands, arms, legs and thighs. If you use a skinfood on face and neck, take just a bit of it on fingertips and massage the hands, arms and legs with it. Then dust with talcum powder or dusting or bath powder. You may use cocoa butter, lanolin, warm olive oil, mineral or almond oil for this purpose.

In the morning, if you use a finishing cream on face and neck, try a wee bit of it for legs, too. Use it sparingly and massage carefully until it is thoroughly absorbed. Then dust with powder and smooth any excess powder away with palms of the hands. Sheer stockings offer precious little protection on cold, windy days and it is important to keep the legs soft, smooth and white as it is to present beautiful hands and face, you know.

Every night after your bath, massage a bit of oil or cream over arms, chest, back, thighs, etc. But once a week, reverse the order of things and try this beauty treatment for your body. Make sure, of course, that your bathroom is the right temperature, guard against all drafts. While you are drawing the water for your bath, massage the entire body with oil. Olive or mineral oil will do and if you want a special treat simply add your favorite perfume (a few drops) or a little rose water to give it a pleasant scent. When you have finished the oil massage, slip into your tub. Use your favorite bath salts, scented powder or toilet water.

Now for a generous lather with a soft bath brush or wash cloth and warm water (not hot). Be sure to use a bland soap—soothing and mild. Slowly let the warm water trickle from the tap and let the oily surface water keep draining out. Rinse thoroughly.

Out of the tub and a brisk rubbing with a Turkish towel until your skin glows. A dusting with powder. Then to bed with skin luxuriously soft and smooth and the treatment conducive to complete rest.

Creams and oils should have a very definite place in your beauty treatment for the entire body and particularly for legs, arms, hands, and face and neck, during the winter months. Preventive measures are always best in dealing with freckles. I never recommend anything strong enough to "remove" freckles as in many cases it may prove quite dangerous.

"HE WAS my buddy," said Corporal McTigue.

"A regular," said Barnswallow, a private.

They bent over the limp figure of Larrabee. He rested on his back, eyes fastened on the stars. A bursting shrapnel showered them with fragments.

"Never get him back. . . . there . . . tonight," Barnswallow said, nodding in the direction of the trench from whence they had begun to reconnoiter some hours before.

Tim McTigue did not answer. He was thinking of the afternoon long ago when Jim Larrabee had gathered up his all but lifeless form from the waters of Eureka lake. Larrabee had labored over him all afternoon before his efforts, which at first seemed to be futile, brought a spark of life. That incident marked the beginning of an unflagging friendship. Even McTigue's marriage had not weakened the bond. Larrabee was a frequent visitor in his home and pretty Mollie McTigue had taken a great liking to him, too. And now Larrabee lay dead, victim of a random enemy bullet.

"Hoist him on my back," McTigue instructed presently, hugging the ground.

Barnswallow sensed the futility of dissenting. "Well alternate," he said. Progress was desperately slow. Occasionally bullets whined overhead.

Presently McTigue felt his companion brush against his shoulder. It seemed hours since they had last spoken, but he knew it could not have been so long because of the inky darkness all around them. They had advanced perhaps twenty-five yards. Barnswallow worked his way along side and Larrabee's flaccid figure was transferred to his back.

Rifles cracked with greater frequency and occasionally an airplane droned overhead. Then Barnswallow discovered McTigue had halted. The margin between his now stationary position was so slight that he had observed this immediately.

"It's getting light," Barnswallow murmured.

McTigue was silent. Barnswallow knew he was weighing their chances from every angle.

"You push on," he said finally. "I'll stick."

Barnswallow shook his head. "Nothin' doing," he protested.

"D—n it, one of us has got to report back," McTigue said, bitterly.

"You're the skipper," Barnswallow said.

McTigue lay still for a long while. A shell tore a hole in the earth, not fifty feet from where they lay.

"Guess we'll have to leave him behind," McTigue said after a while.

They deposited the corpse in the hole torn by the shell.

"I suppose," McTigue said, slowly, "we ought to search his clothes for . . . things."

Barnswallow nodded. Larrabee had a brother in Kansas City. He'd never married. Barnswallow raised to his knees beside the body. His fingers were numb and heavy.

"Go on," McTigue commanded, hoarsely.

Barnswallow fumbled at the button of Larrabee's jacket. They were flaked with dirt and dry blood.

His face was ghastly when he finished. He had gathered a pipe, a tobacco pouch, a handkerchief, a soiled letter and a small photograph.

"Nothing of value," he said, bending toward McTigue, who seized the collection.

"Was this all?"

"Yes. . . ." hesitatingly.

"What's that? In your other hand?"

"A photograph. . . . of Jim," Barnswallow said. "You probably have one."

"I haven't," McTigue snapped. "He told me he didn't have one. Let's see it."

Barnswallow made no move to comply. McTigue cursed vehemently.

"Give me that picture," he commanded, springing from the ground. His voice keyed to the pitch of his emotions, carried to alert enemy ears. A machine gun spat bullets all around. McTigue pitched forward.

"Jees!" he muttered, as his body convulsed, relaxed and was still.

Barnswallow flattened to the ground. He remained motionless for some time, cheek pressed against the damp earth. Then he remembered it was fast becoming light. Before pushing toward the trenches once more he knew he must confirm his startling discovery. He rolled over until his body pressed against that of his newly fallen comrade.

In the pocket of McTigue's shirt he located the object of his search, a small photograph of McTigue's wife, which the latter had proudly displayed on frequent occasion. Mollie McTigue was unmistakably pretty. The inscription on the back of the photograph read:

"Lovingly yours,

"Mollie."

Barnswallow compared this photograph with the one found in Larrabee's jacket. They were identical, except that on the back of Larrabee's, Mollie McTigue had scrawled:

"To Jim, my own. Loving you always,

"Mollie."

The sun nosed over the horizon and there was a something clean and refreshing about the damp earth as Barnswallow wriggled forward.

Colonists May Displace
Famous Greek Monastery

Feminism may have conquered the greatest portion of the world, but there are still places in Europe where equality of sexes is not yet recognized, and where no woman is allowed to enter even under an escort of the male sex.

One of these spots is in Greece, and unless the Greek government succeeds in its plans of national confiscation, women of all over the world will try in vain to climb those mountains where for centuries monks have lived carrying out their anti-woman tradition.

Amongst these monasteries are those on Mount Athos, but there are many more, less famous although not less rigid in the enforcement of the "no woman" rule.

Built on top of almost inaccessible mountains where approach is so difficult that cable rails are used instead of ropes, these monasteries are said to be immensely wealthy. In many cases, nobody knows the amount of art treasures, gems, antiques, and so on they may hide, but it is generally admitted that some of them occupy the positions which, thousands of years ago, were the sites of famous temples, when Apollo and other divinities were presiding over the immense prosperity of Greece.

The fall of Troy, the advent of Byzantium, and the arrival in Greece of the first apostles, established new rulers in these deserted temples. Where Apollo's hymns were once sung Christian hymns were heard; where pagan priests congregated, Christian monks came to live and pray. The strict rule of chastity was imposed, a rule which has survived throughout centuries.

The monks live a simple and strict life; they devote many hours to prayer, to singing, and to religious celebration; they live almost entirely on the produce of the soil they cultivate, bartering olives, honey, fruits, oil and other produce against other necessities. Some of these monks were very wealthy persons; many of them Russians, Germans and even Turks who made a gift to the monastery of all their worldly goods.

Members of some of the most aristocratic families in Europe are said to have become members of these communities and to have brought fabulous riches to the monasteries.

Undisturbed throughout centuries, even by the many changes of foreign domination which included a long period of Turkish rule, these monasteries have prospered in their independent life.

But today their existence is threatened. The necessity for giving an outlet to their refugees from Asia Minor is forcing the Greek government to open one of the most sacred soils in the world to those families of colonists who are returning to their motherland. The monks of Mount Athos and of the other monasteries may have to go; their places being taken by the new pioneers who will bring with them their women and children, thus breaking the last of the anti-feminist tradition existing in Europe. For the first time a woman will be able to climb those mountains, which so far men alone have ruled and inhabited.

NEED SHOWN FOR
BRUSH AND TREE
HILLSIDE GROWTH

The value of a dense growth of vegetation for the protection of watersheds, be it grass, brush or tree growth, was never better illustrated than in the flood calamity that recently occurred in southern California.

It will be recalled that last fall fire destroyed all brush and tree growth on more than 5,000 acres of hillsides in the Los Angeles area and caused a great loss of life as well as property. It was from these denuded slopes that a flood 30 times greater than the high water from forested hillsides swept down on those southern California communities, carrying millions of tons of silt and destroying everything in its path.

For fear that such a calamity would occur following the fire last fall, forest service men immediately sowed some 4,000 acres of this fire-swept hillside with mustard to re-establish a protective covering, but unfortunately the mustard crop had not germinated when the heavy rainfall which caused the flood occurred.

"From 14 to 16 inches of rain fell in two days," explain forest service men, "and rushed down the unprotected hillsides without restraint, carrying bridges, homes, automobiles and everything before it. Roughly speaking, more than 30 times as much water came off this burned area as came off the unburned areas adjacent, and if the hills had retained their brush over less than one-thirtieth of the run-off would have occurred. This is one of the most striking examples that we have ever recorded of the potential capacity of vegetation cover to retard run-off, even in a torrential rainfall."

There is nothing like the root systems of trees, brush and plant life to serve as a natural storage reservoir for water, and without this floods are certain to occur.—Albert Stoll, Jr., in the Detroit News.

SHE FOUND A WAY OUT

She Had to Have Money and This Is How She Earned It

Mrs. Louise Timbarthy, like thousands of other women, a short time ago was confronted with a positive need for more money. Her husband had been out of work for some time and their savings were almost gone. She couldn't have taken a regular job if she had found one because her children needed her care. But she found a way out of her difficulties, and she is willing to tell the world how she did it. She said she was reading this newspaper one day when she noticed this advertisement:

CUT ME OUT

and mail me, with your name and address to LORD & AMES, INC., 360 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago. I will bring you a free sample of Lony Face Powder and details how to make $5.00 to $10.00 a week extra in your spare time.

She answered the advertisement and received the free samples by return mail with a letter telling her how to start in business. Mrs. Timbarthy started to work that day by showing the samples to some of her friends. She didn't meet with any success. The second day was a little better. The third day was just "terrible." In fact, the results from her first week's work were sad and disappointing. She found she had earned exactly $1.10.

However, on the fourth week orders began to come in from the women to whom she had shown her samples and her second week was more successful. She earned $14.75 on her fourth week and for the past three months her income has ranged from $5.00 to $21.00 a week, according to the number of hours she has been able to spare from her housework. Besides, she gets all her own beauty aids and cosmetics at less than wholesale price.

She advises any woman confronted with the same problem she faced to cut out and mail the little advertisement.—Adv.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

PETER AND NIMBLEHEELS COMPARE TAILS

PETER RABBIT always has been interested in tails. He just can't help it. You see, he hasn't much of a tail himself, so when he meets anyone whose tail is short he always has a friendly feeling. And when he meets one with a long tail he always is a wee bit envious. Peter is like a great many people in that he always wants what he hasn't got.

For the life of him Peter couldn't keep his eyes away from the tail of

It Was the Longest Tail for the Size of Its Owner Peter Had Ever Seen.

Nimbleheels the Jumping Mouse. It was the longest tail for the size of its owner that Peter ever had seen. It was more than twice as long as the body of Nimbleheels, and it was slim and tapering. As he looked at it Peter couldn't help wondering how it was possible for Nimbleheels to make such very big jumps when he had to take such a long tail as that with him. It was this which led him at last to ask Nimbleheels if that tail didn't bother him when he jumped.

"Certainly not," declared Nimbleheels very emphatically. "If I didn't have such a long tail I wouldn't be able to make such long jumps."

Peter looked as surprised as he felt. "For goodness sake!" he exclaimed. "What has your tail got to do with your jumping? I'm a pretty good jumper myself, or thought I was until I met you, but my tail doesn't have anything to do with my jumping."

Nimbleheels laughed. It was a funny, thin, high, squeaky, little laugh. "No," said he. "I shouldn't think it could have much to do with your jumping."

Peter grinned and looked over his shoulder at the funny little bunch of cotton he calls a tail. "No," he agreed, "it isn't much as tails go, and it isn't of any use in jumping. All the same it is very useful and I don't know how I would get along without it."

Nimbleheels pricked up his ears and looked interested. "Is that really so?" he asked. "I never for a minute imagined that such a tail could be useful. Of what use is it, pray?"

"As a guide when I am showing my youngsters the way about outside the dear Old Briar Patch," replied Peter promptly. "They can see that white tail of mine when they can't see anything else, and so they keep from getting lost. It really is very useful in this respect. I don't know what I would do without it. But you haven't told me yet how you use that long tail of yours in jumping."

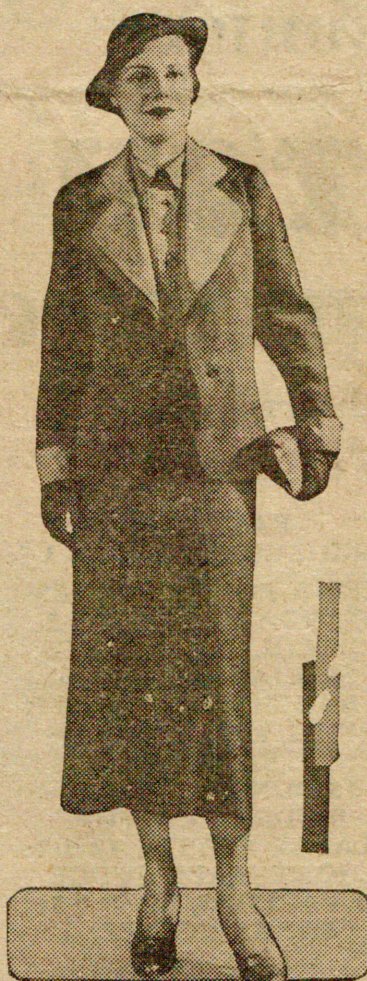

Nimbleheels chuckled. "Oh," said he, "I just carry it along behind me." Peter looked at Nimbleheels sharply. He suspected that he was being made fun of. "Where else would you carry it, I'd like to know?" said he.

"And that," continued Nimbleheels snapping his bright little eye, "is why I can jump straight. It is my tail that gives me my balance in the air. If anything should happen to it I would never know where I was going to land or how. I once saw one of my family who lost his tail. It really was dreadful to see the poor fellow try to jump. He would turn over and over in the air, sometimes land right on his back. I wouldn't have anything happen to my tail for the world."

"It is rather important, isn't it?" said Peter, staring at that long tail with great respect. "I should think you would take the very greatest care of it."

"I do," replied Nimbleheels. © T. W. Burgess.—WNU Service.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

MARITAL BRAKES

A CHICAGO judge who has had 40,000 cases of marital disputes before him and reconciled 2,000 of the couples, feels that he knows something about why people go to the divorce courts and—more important—how they can be kept out of them.

At the bottom of most marital unhappiness, this Judge Sabath of Chicago finds, are trivialities. "Such a simple thing as a wife waving good-bye to her husband when he goes to work in the morning would avert a good many divorces," he says.

And most important among all his conclusions, is the conviction that "most people want to do the right thing." Therefore the usual, trivial causes of trouble can be defeated by just observing a few simple rules: Here they are:

1. Have patience with each other.
2. Work together, play together, grow up together.
3. In all disputes avoid excited talk.
4. Do not conceal little differences until they accumulate to the breaking point; discuss them calmly.
5. Be frank with each other.
6. Sympathy and mutual understanding are the pillars of the home.
7. Share responsibilities.
8. Establish a home of your own.
9. Make your bedtime prayers a review of the day and never go to sleep without a clean slate.
10. Certainly these are all very simple things, and none of the rules is startlingly new. If they are the answer to marital peace and happiness, and most of us will readily agree, why are they individually not more frequently observed?

Doubtless because they are simple enough and seem easy enough while everything is going smoothly. It is when they are most needed, however, when there is resentment and dissension and hotheadedness, that these simple remedies are not so easy to observe. It is like telling a vehicle that is rolling rapidly down hill to be reasonable in turning the corner.

That, you may say, is what we have brakes for. And that is exactly how married people should use such a set of rules—as brakes, when they feel things going down hill. Once they stop you, the rest is simple enough. What they tell you to do is really what you want to do. It's the stopping to think about it that is the big thing.

Candidate For Democratic Nomination For
U. S. Congress
11th District

Ruth Brannon of Manhattan is making a strong appeal for nomination as Democratic candidate for U. S. Congress in the 11th District her candidacy is meeting with favorable comment throughout the entire district.

Ruth Brannon is backed with excellent education and training and would be able to fill this office to the full satisfaction of the people of this district.

She is the possessor of an excellent reputation and counts her friends by the thousands, and carries the endorsement of many prominent citizens of the 11th District.

In making this review we gladly call the attention of the readers to this candidacy and suggest that the Democratic candidate for Representative in the U. S. Congress from the 11th District be given careful thought on primary day.

James Rosenberg

of Joliet

Candidate for Republican Nomination for Sheriff

As the time for the spring primary draws close the consensus of opinion seems to point to the nomination of James Rosenberg of Joliet for Sheriff on the Republican Ticket.

James Rosenberg always has been known as an able man in business and farming affairs. He has always taken an interest in public affairs and has been a loyal member of the Republican party and many prominent Republicans feel that the party owes him the nomination for his services of the past.

Mr. Rosenberg is thoroughly qualified for the position and in the event of his nomination would make an excellent candidate as people generally are cognizant of his ability to fill the position. He would be able to direct the affairs of the office as he has natural ability as a leader and in other duties whether clerical, detective or carrying out the orders of the court he is recognized as thoroughly competent.

In making this review we are pleased to call the attention of the Republican voters of Will county to the candidacy of James Rosenberg and would suggest that you remember him on primary day.

Judge Ralph C. Austin

WILL COUNTY COURT

Judge Ralph C. Austin is one of the leading figures in Joliet's public life today, prominently identified as Judge of the Will County Court. His career has been one of significance to the welfare and advance of the people, and in his present position of honor and trust he commands the esteem and admiration of the profession with which he is associated and of the people.

Sitting in review upon the human actions is a duty that calls for fine powers of discrimination requiring of the judge on the bench that he be able to read human nature, to stand in the other man's shoes, and only with such adaptability may a justice be said to possess the qualities necessary to success. These attributes in abundance are part of the equipment of Judge Austin's whose broad sympathies and dependable judgment have made his name widely known.

His administration of the law is just and at the same time merciful, making the ideal that the people expect to find in a County Judge.

CHRIST THOMPSON

of Joliet

Formerly of Powers-Thompson Construction Co.

Candidate for Republican Nomination for Sheriff

A name loudly heard and well known in political talk and life today is that of Christ Thompson formerly of Powers-Thompson Construction Co., of Joliet, who is conducting a real campaign for the office of Sheriff of Will County, seeking the nomination in the April 10th primaries on the Republican ticket. His campaign is indeed being well received by both the farmers and town folks of the county.

Christ Thompson, formerly of Powers-Thompson Construction Co., is a well known man of Joliet.

and Will County who enjoys an excellent standing as a citizen and due to his understanding of the problems of the people and their needs, he is most able and qualified to satisfactorily fill the office of Sheriff.

In compiling this political feature review, presenting candidates who have announced their candidacy for public office, we find no candidate enjoying a higher reputation or standing, and ask that this fact be kept in mind when the reader enters the booth on the coming primary day.

FRANKFORT SCHOOL NEWS

We, as pupils of the Frankfort public school wish to show our appreciation to the district and especially the board members for the time and labor they are spending in the redecoration of our school and for the many improvements made on it. We are not only expressing our appreciation in words, but we are expecting to do our part in keeping it as neat and clean as possible.

In the sixth year reading they are writing limericks and here are some samples of their work:
Jim jumped into the James River,
To cure the pain in his liver.
The water was deep,
He fell fast asleep,
And they buried the pain in his liver.

There was a small boy from Quebec,
Who fell in snow to his neck;
They said, "Are you friz?"
He replied, "Yes, I is!"
And he didn't go back to Quebec.

There was once a man with a beard,
Who said, "It is just as I feared".
Two owls and a hen,
Four larks and a wren,
Have all built their nests in my beard."

The Frankfort band is rapidly making headway in it's work. The new members are steadily coming in. As soon as the members who are now ill, are back we expect to choose a name for the band.

The band and orchestra are working hard so that they may have a full concert soon. New band books have been started and the band finds it very interesting. Lessons are taken regularly every Wednesday and Saturday.

We welcome back Lloyd Lühring to our ensemble and also appreciate the fact that Henry Eisenbrandt and Robert Klepper see fit to add their weight and influence to our ensemble.

We hope that soon some of our new members as Elvira Hossbach, Alice Wischover, Leta McArthur, Wilbur Topp, Marjetta Roam and her brother will be able to play in our band ensemble.

The ensemble wishes to express its appreciation of the work being done by the boosters, organization and the patronage given them by the public.

The Country Newspaper

Turning from city newspapers to small town press exchanges that come to the editor's desk is like stepping from the slums, full of vice, into an old-fashioned garden sweet with lavender and thyme and the scent of perennial flowers. The pages of big dailies are so full of murder, thievery, immorality and selfishness that the better news is obscured by these glaring shatterings of the Decalogue. One puts the papers aside with a feeling of depression and heartache that the world is so full of terrible and unhappy things.

Then picking up the papers that record the happenings of the little towns around us, one gains renewed faith in life. Here are set forth only that which uplifts a community—the activities of the business men, the church items, the happy social gatherings of the people, the marriages, births and deaths, farmer's items, and all the thousand and one daily occurrences that make up the simple annals of the great common people, who are really the foundation of this broad country of ours.

Sometimes people speak lightly of the country newspaper but it is one of the most potent and uplifting factors in our national existence.—Christian Science Monitor.

LINCOLN ESTATES

Several of the Veterans and their wives attended the house warming of Joliet Post No. 367 V. F. W. on Saturday night and a good time was had by all.

It looks like the Veterans will have to hold another dance in the near future to satisfy their many local and out of town friends.

Much activity is being shown at the Becker's new place. They expect to be ready for business by the 17th of March.

Dr. Davis and nephew and Peter Peterson were callers at Becker's on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Mayhorne have lately moved into the Lincoln Estates from Chicago.

Mr. O. Niedringhaus has returned to Camp St. Charles after spending the week end with his family.

Mrs. Elizabeth Walker and son Wm. Lockwood visited in Chicago on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Tyler made a combined business and pleasure trip to Chicago Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Beven have moved to their new home in Mahi-gan.

Several of the Comrades of Wm. Martin Post No. 725 V. F. W. were called upon again to perform the sad duty of having a loved one laid to their final rest. The deepest sympathy of his comrades is extended to Comrade Lester Vanderbough in the recent bereavement of his beloved wife.

The next stated meeting of Wm. Martin Post No. 725 V. F. W. will be held on Saturday, March 10 at 8 p. m. We are looking forward to a big gathering, so be sure and be present.

Mrs. Elizabeth Walker and Mrs. Wm. Lockwood spent Thursday quilting at the home of Mrs. Martha Hall in Mokena.

MOKENA

Mrs. Chas. Olson of Mossville, Ill., has been visiting with Mokena friends the past week.

Niethammer avenue has been improved with a cinder dressing the past week.

A party was held at the Edward Werner home one night the past week.

The musical program put on by the Men's Choir and orchestra of the Lockport M. E. church under the auspices of the Mokena M. E. church at the Mokena school auditorium last Friday night. The program, consisting of songs and musical selections was very good and the Lockport folks are to be congratulated for having such fine young people and talent. The various numbers were repeatedly encouraged. It is hoped that Mokena will hear and see more of this group in the near future. Wm. Weber is the president of the group.

Leon Tonn has completed his services on the federal jury in Chicago.

D. R. Anderson of Joliet, Repub-lican candidate for county judge at the April primary, called on the Mokena voters Friday afternoon.

The Brotherhood of the St. John Evangelical church journeyed to The Church of Peace Evangelical church in Harvey Monday night. Dart ball was the chief diversion, the local Brotherhood members being the winners. The Harvey Brotherhood will pay a visit to St. John's Brotherhood on Monday night, March 19th.

Leon Tonn and Wm. Semmler attended a meeting of the Men's Endeavor Club of the Frankfort M. E. church Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Garlach of Koutts, Indiana have been visiting with the latter's sister, Mrs. Kate Cooper.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Meyer entertained the Bridge Club at their home Monday night.

Mrs. Tom Moore entertained the Catholic Women's Society Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Willis Hall of Chicago has been visiting with Mokena relatives this week.

CONGRESSIONAL

HONORS SOUGHT FOR WILL COUNTY

The primary campaign in the Eleventh Congressional District of Illinois offers voters of Will County the first real opportunity in more than a decade to nominate and elect to congress a local citizen, efficient, qualified and competent, with a record assuring service.

Will County's last representative in Congress was Hon. H. M. Snapp, followed by Hon. Ira C. Copley and later Frank R. Reid, both of the latter from Kane county. Under the "New Deal" era Will County voters are preparing to throw full power into the primary on April 10 to retrieve the honors to which this section is again entitled as the largest Republican county in the district.

Mr. Bell announces as planks of his "Four Square" platform, Reduce Taxes, Relieve Unemployment, Regulate Receiverships and Rehabilitate Agriculture.

How to walk on country roads is shown in the March safety poster just issued by the Chicago Motor Club. The poster portrays two children walking against oncoming traffic. The caption says: "On country highways walk against traffic, not with it."

The safety Bulletin issued to the schools points out that, despite many warnings, pedestrians continue to ignore the lesson taught in this poster. In 1932 it was estimated that more than 10,000 pedestrians were injured on rural highways in the United States. The state of Illinois in 1927 passed a law requiring every pedestrian to walk on the left side of the roadway and to step off the pavement when motor traffic is approaching. Pedestrians are urged to obey this law, and as additional protection the use of a light at night or a white handkerchief displayed prominently are suggested.

Frank E. Jack, vice president of the motor club in charge of accident prevention, says, "The lesson taught by this poster is applicable in cities, as well as in rural communities. Even in large cities we find pedestrians walking along streets, in outlying sections, oblivious to the dangers of traffic. Observers point out that only about 50 per cent of the pedestrians using the highways walk in the correct manner, that is, against traffic instead of with it."

Tells How Men and Women Lose Fat Safe Way Is Wonderful

"I started to take Kruschen and my husband saw what I was doing and asked for some also. Would you believe it, he's lost 12 lbs. in 8 weeks and intends to keep up the good work. I've lost 14 lbs. I am now 133—I was 169, I think Kruschen is simply wonderful." Mrs. J. H. Valentine, Freeport, N. Y.

How would you like to safely and harmlessly lose 15 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

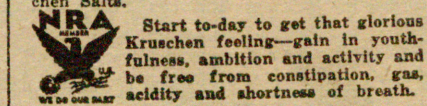

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent hips and abdomen and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

Get on the scales to-day and see how much you weigh—then get a jar of Kruschen Salts that costs not more than 85 cents and which will last you 4 weeks. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again.

After that you'll want to walk around and say to your friends, "One jar of Kruschen Salts is worth one hundred dollars of any fat person's money."

But refuse imitations—safeguard your health—you lose fat SAFELY with Kruschen. Leading druggists America over sell Kruschen Salts.

Start to-day to get that glorious Kruschen feeling—pale in youthfulness, ambition and activity and be free from constipation, gas, acidity and shortness of breath.

"WHY SHOULD I GO TO FLORIDA when we've got Gas Heat!"

An informal interview with Mr. Thomas E. Gorey, 504 Herkimer St., Joliet, Ill.

LOOK at a man enjoying a vacation in his own home! It's Mr. Thomas E. Gorey—just one of more than 20,000 home owners now heating with gas.

"No work, nothing to worry about—why should I go to Florida when we've got gas heat," says Mr. Gorey. "The fuel is always there, and it never runs out. The house is always cozy and warm. If a blizzard comes along you're never caught short, and that means a lot to a fellow's peace of mind."

"And gas heat is absolutely clean. I actually don't think we'll have to do any decorating this spring."

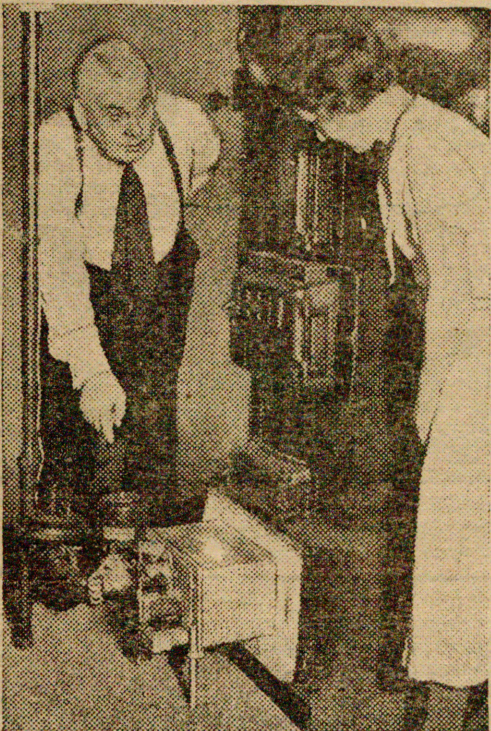

Thousands switching to gas heat as rates go down

Imagine your home free from soot, dust, dirt, and furnace drudgery! Imagine getting just the temperatures you want, night and day, by adjusting a little thermostat on the wall. Why put up with furnace worries any longer, when rates for gas heat are so low?

Think of it—gas heating rates are now only half of what they were during the 1930-31 heating season. And—you can try gas heat without investing one cent! We will install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our own expense. You pay only the rental on the equipment, which amounts to $3 a month in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use. You try it for a month, two months, a year. And if within the year you find that you are not completely satisfied with gas, we will take it out at our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But—if you decide to keep gas heat—as we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

Act now!

Don't delay! It is pure folly not to investigate this liberal offer on gas heat when it brings so many comforts and conveniences. Call your nearest Public Service office for full information.

Mr. Gorey shows his daughter May the marvel of simplicity of the gas heating unit. It automatically maintains the exact temperature you want—every hour, day and night.

The Gorey home at 504 Herkimer Street, Joliet, Illinois. Over 20,000 homes in the Chicago area have switched to gas heat because of the new low rates and marvelous convenience.

Gas heat can be installed in your home without allowing the house to cool off

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

STARTLING TRIAL OFFER!

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense... and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

YOU INVEST NOTHING!

Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your furnace or boiler. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not—and you are the sole judge—out it comes and your former heating system is re-installed—AT OUR EXPENSE. We make this offer because of our confidence in the perfection of gas heat.

ACCURACY

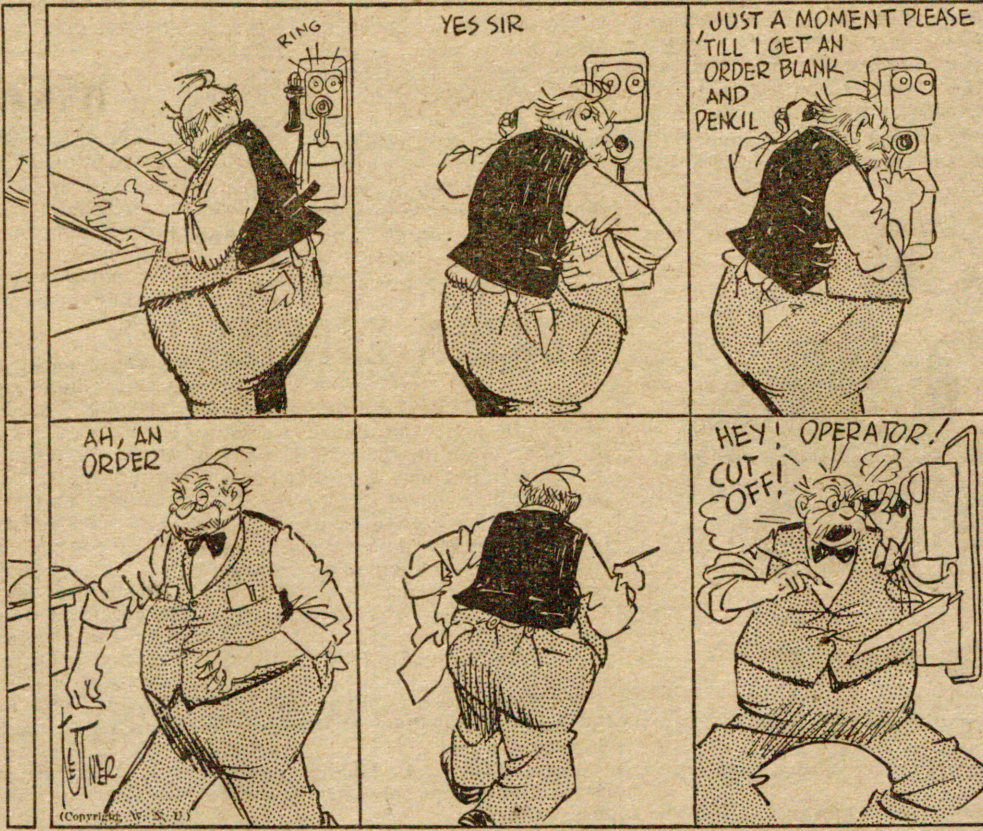

The accuracy of your gas meter is measured to rigid specifications of the United States Bureau of Standards before it is installed. Its high accuracy is checked at recurrent periods during its operation.

The service and billing departments of Public Service Company of Northern Illinois have a similar high goal—your satisfaction with the quality of the service and the accuracy of the charges for it.

THE WEDDING MARCH MURDER

by

WNU Service.

SYNOPSIS

Waiting in the minister's study, Jim Franklin, about to be married to Doris Carmody, is stabbed to death. Peter Cardigan, novelist, and amateur detective of some note, with Sergeant Kilday, begin the official investigation. Franklin, while waiting, had visitors, among them his mistress, "Choo Choo Train"; his intended wife's father, Ambrose Carmody; her brother, Rylie; Daniel Bullis, politician, and a woman in a blue frock. Rylie Carmody admits trying to stop the wedding, after being informed by Webster Spears that Franklin was still friendly with Choo Choo, despite his approaching marriage. Kilday secures the dead man's keys. From Callis Shipley, one of the bridesmaids, Rylie's friend, the investigators learn nothing. An interview with Bullis is fruitless. Webster Spears admits informing Rylie Carmody of Franklin's relations with Choo Choo, for Doris Carmody's sake, in the hope of preventing the wedding. Fletcher, Franklin's man-servant, is reticent. An interview with Milo Dunbar, Franklin's law partner, and search of the dead man's office, reveals nothing of importance. Choo Choo admits her relations with Franklin were to continue after his marriage. She says she visited Franklin at the church because a telephone message from Fletcher told her to come. Fletcher denies calling the actress. Six of the seven keys Franklin carried are traced to their respective locks.

"I'll hurry, Sergeant. I just came back to tell you that the Shipley girl is here. She just arrived."

"Why didn't you say so, instead of standing there like an idiot?" the officer grumbled. "Show her in."

He laid a newspaper over the grisly exhibits on his desk.

Callis Shipley glanced inquisitively from one man to the other. As before, Peter was struck by her beauty, not the least appealing thing about it being that the girl seemed utterly unconscious of it. She wore it, Peter thought, with the same charming indifference which she probably attached to the perfection of her costume. Peter was usually shy of women, particularly beautiful women, who never seemed to forget their own loveliness. But he felt instinctively that this was the sort of girl who could be a good comrade. Her blue eyes were made for laughter, in spite of the gravity of their present expression, and, he admitted it reluctantly, she stirred his sympathies, just as she had before. In the duel that was to come, he knew that she, not Sergeant Kilday, would claim his partisanship. That very partisanship put him on his guard against her, yet he could not control it.

"You sent for me?"

Peter noticed the slight tremor of her hands, but she quickly clasped them in her lap, where they might not betray her. She was frightened, then.

Kilday deposited his cigar in the tray, careful not to disturb the ash, watching the girl shrewdly, all the while.

"Miss Shipley," he began deliberately, "you didn't tell us the truth, last night, about your ride home from the church with Rylie Carmody. Later you admitted it. Why?"

"I told you. I—I had jumped to conclusions concerning what had happened. I was worried. I was afraid of involving Rylie, because I was sure he was innocent. I realize now, of course, that was very foolish, but at the time I was frightened."

"Frightened? You mean on Rylie's account?"

"Yes." She hesitated, as though reluctant at making this man her confidant, and then explained, "I have already told you that I love Rylie. We are to be married this fall."

"Let me see," the sergeant appeared to be summing up the evidence in his own mind. "You knew Rylie didn't like Franklin—he telephoned you yesterday that he couldn't meet you because he had to see Franklin—he told you he had discovered that Franklin was having an affair with this actress, Choo Choo Train, didn't he?"

The girl nodded.

"And so when Franklin didn't show up and the wedding was postponed, you jumped to the conclusion that Rylie had had something to do with it. Am I still right?"

"But I don't think so now. I know Rylie couldn't have had anything to do with it. Why, anyone who knows Rylie knows he couldn't have done such a thing."

Kilday nodded grimly. "That's what you say now, but just the same, you admit you thought he was guilty, at first, in spite of the fact that you tell us you are in love with him. You can scarcely expect us to have more confidence in him than you have, can you?"

Callis Shipley clenched her fists. "Aren't you overlooking this? The very fact that I am in love with him was probably responsible for my fears. Women are apt to be—hysterical, sometimes, concerning some one they love."

Peter, listening, mistrusted the statement. This girl, he thought, would be the last to grow hysterical. She was proving that now, in her defense of Rylie Carmody.

The sergeant shrugged. "How many times did you visit the sacrists yesterday?" was his next question.

"Once. I've told about that."

"And you saw no one but Nick Royce? You never saw Doctor Abernathy?"

"No. Mr. Royce was the only one there. Mr. Franklin was in the study. We spoke to him, through the door, but I saw no one but Mr. Royce."

"Now, Miss Shipley," the detective permitted a smile to soften the lines of his face as he leaned forward engagingly, "what made you so sure that a murder had been committed? You were out in front. You only heard Doctor Abernathy's announcement that the wedding had been postponed. There was nothing said about murder. And yet, when Rylie took you home, you told him that Jim Franklin had been murdered."

"You must be mistaken. I never told him that."

"He says that's what you told him," the detective insisted.

"No, he told me I said something terrible had happened. I never used the word murder and neither did he. Later, after Rylie returned to the church and discovered what had happened, you asked him who told him about it. He said that I did. He referred to the fact that I had told him something had occurred to stop the wedding."

"How do you know what he told me?" Kilday demanded.

"He told me."

"When?"

"Last night."

"Oh, you two have been getting together on your stories, have you?"

The girl's teeth gleamed where they bit, momentarily, into the scarlet of her lip. "That's a crude way of putting it. Naturally, we discussed everything that had happened, as soon as we saw each other."

"Oh, You Two Have Been Getting Together on Your Stories, Have You?"

"Naturally," agreed the detective. "Now, Miss Shipley, I want to ask you concerning that remark you overheard Webster Spears make as he left the church yesterday. Just what was it he said? Please use his exact words, as nearly as you can."

"I'm afraid I don't remember exactly what he said. I was quite excited, you know."

"Not then, you weren't," Kilday contradicted her. "It was his remark that caused you to get excited, remember?"

"Well, he asked where Rylie was."

"He said something else, didn't he? You told us last night."

"Did I? I don't remember." Her eyes widened in apparent surprise.

"Huh," the sergeant grunted. "Don't try that on me. You told us Spears said, 'Where's Rylie? If he were here, there wouldn't be any wedding.'"

The girl appeared to reflect on the statement. "I'm afraid you're misquoting me, Sergeant Kilday. Or perhaps I misquoted Web. I'm sure that isn't the way I meant to say it. As I remember, Web said, 'Where's Rylie? We can't go on with the wedding until he gets here.'"

"Oh," the detective was elaborately emphatic. "So that was what he said, eh? Quite a bit different from what you told us last night."

"Yes," the girl agreed, too eagerly, Peter felt. "If I said anything else last night, I must have had it twisted."

"And so," Kilday's manner had turned gruff, "that little remark got you so excited that you ran all the way around back to find Rylie. The wedding was about to start and you left the rest of the party to start a search for Rylie, just because Web Spears wondered where he was. Huh uh. That isn't what he said, young lady. You've already told us this remark was what got you excited."

"Remember, I was already worried about Rylie," the girl amended.

Kilday ignored this. "I don't suppose you've seen Webster Spears since then, have you? Perhaps he suggested that you make this change in your story."

"No," declared Callis firmly. "I haven't seen him since he walked out of the church yesterday."

"What is there between you and this Webster Spears? Ever been in love with him?"

She shook her head emphatically. "Never. I've known him all my life. We've been good friends, that's all."

"Never had an affair with him before you fell in love with Rylie Carmody?"

"No." She frowned impatiently. "And how about Jim Franklin? How well did you know him, Miss Shipley?"

Peter could not be sure whether the girl's surprise were real or feigned.

"I only knew him very slightly," she retorted. "The first time I ever met him was after he was engaged to Doris Carmody."

The sergeant digested this in silence. Then, abandoning his cigar, he extracted a cigarette from a smooth silver case and offered one to the girl. "Will you have a cigarette, Miss Shipley?"

"No, thanks."

"Have a look at the case, anyway, won't you? Perhaps you can tell us where you have seen it before."

The girl examined the case carefully. "I'm sorry," she said, handing it back. "I don't think I can be of any help. I've never seen it before."

Peter thought he detected a note of relief in her voice as she added, "It isn't Rylie's. I'm sure of that. He carries one which I gave him."

Kilday placed it carefully back on the desk. The finger-prints on that case soon would be a matter of record. "And now"—he turned again to the girl—"you may as well know that you haven't deceived me, Miss Shipley. You say you haven't seen Web Spears since he left the church yesterday. I know that you were at his house last night. You were there when we called, and he denied it."

"Yesterday you attempted to deceive us about riding from the church with Rylie until you discovered that we knew the truth. Now you try the same trick again, but it won't work this time, either."

"I'd advise you to come clean. What were you doing at Spears' house last night, if he doesn't mean anything to you? Why have you changed your story regarding what Spears said as he left the church? Are you ready to tell me the truth now?"

"Just who are you trying to protect in this affair?" Kilday demanded. "Rylie Carmody or Webster Spears?"

"There is nothing between Webster Spears and me," the girl retorted angrily. The flush of her cheeks almost matched the cherry shade of her lips. "I'm not accustomed to being talked to in this way."

"I'm not used to having otherwise charming young ladies lie to me, either," the detective replied ironically. "Are you going to answer my question?"

The girl was silent.

"All right, I'll answer it for you," declared Kilday. "Webster Spears is the man you're trying to protect now. Last night it was Rylie Carmody. And I'll tell you why."

"Last night you knew that Jim Franklin was murdered and that Rylie Carmody had sworn to stop the wedding. You knew that, because he told you so, when he phoned you that he couldn't meet you. You were afraid he was guilty because you hadn't seen him at the church at the time the crime was committed. He had probably told you about his quarrel with Franklin, back there in the study. He had the motive and he had the opportunity. You had a right to be worried about him. And so you deceived me, or tried to, about riding home from the church with him, because you didn't want us to suspect that he had been anywhere near there when Franklin was killed. It never occurred to you, then, that Webster Spears was involved. You were only thinking of Rylie, and so you told us what Spears said as he left the church."

"But after we left you last night"—the sergeant sat hunched forward in his chair, his relentless glance never moving from the girl's face—"you found out, somehow, that Webster Spears was the murderer. I won't ask you how. I wouldn't expect you to tell me the truth. But you found out. And now you're just as anxious to protect him as you were to protect the man you told us you loved. What's the answer? What is Spears to you? Why should he have wanted to kill Franklin? Was it because he was still in love with Doris Carmody himself? That's what I thought at first. Now I'm not so sure. Perhaps he was telling us the truth when he said that was all over now. Perhaps you're the one he loved. And," here Kilday thumped his knee significantly, "I'll find out, Miss Shipley. You've already discovered that I know more than you think I do. If I were you, I'd about decide that now was the time to tell the truth—all the truth. What do you think about it?"

"What do you want me to tell you?" Callis Shipley asked quietly.

"I want to know what there was between you and Jim Franklin?"

The girl stiffened.

"I want to know why you're protecting Web Spears and what you were doing at his home last night. I want to know why you have attempted to deceive me, not just once, but several times." He paused, looking at the girl expectantly.

"I've told you that I only knew Mr. Franklin very casually. Webster Spears and I are good friends, nothing more. I believe I was more than frank," declared the girl angrily, "when I told you that I am in love with Rylie Carmody. After that, the rest of your questions are in very poor taste, to say the least."

"And that's all you have to say?"

Afrikaans' Language

The Afrikaans language is making headway in Africa. It was developed by the Dutch at the Cape from their own tongue, English and native languages.

MEETS DEMANDS FOR HIGH SPEED

Streamline Principle Has Proved Effective.

The virtue of streamlining automobile bodies for the specific purpose of enabling human beings to drive faster than their nerve reflexes would seem to permit them to operate in safety may be seriously questioned. The incapacity of the average individual to accommodate himself to the exigencies of high speed is in fact notorious. But as to the other virtues of streamlining—fuel efficiency and economy—there is no longer any dispute.

The streamlining principle is being applied not only in the manufacture of automobiles, but in the design of ships and railroad trains, with an intensity of purpose never before known. Its application in aircraft design is of course imperative, and has there reached its greatest refinement.

The great Atlantic liners Europa and Bremen are the best-known examples of effective streamlining in ship construction. Their bows of bulbous shape below the waterline and their streamlined superstructures and funnels have helped to make them the speed queens of the sea they traverse. Incidentally it is of interest to note that this is the one hundred and fourteenth anniversary of the sailing of the Savannah, the pioneer Atlantic steamship, from Savannah for Liverpool. She was a sailing vessel equipped with auxiliary steam power, and crossed the ocean in 27 days, during which her paddle wheels were in operation 80 hours. Both the Europa and Bremen have sailed from Cherbourg breakwater to Ambrose Channel lightship in slightly more than 4 days and 17 hours.

Now, seemingly, railroad rolling stock is to be made the subject of streamlining experimentation. And well it may, in view of the keen competition of planes and motor vehicles. A German train which looks like nothing orthodox has been developed for operation at extremely high average speed, the famous Royal Scot showed evidence of some effort to lessen wind resistance through the design, and a cross-continent railroad has announced that it is studying designs for passenger trains which will be operated at 100 miles per hour.

Most of us, however, need to bear in mind that there is a sharp distinction to be made between the operation of a streamlined airplane or railroad train at very high speed by one who has been specially trained and subjected to a rigorous physical examination, and the driving of automobiles at fast rates by Tom, Dick and Harry. The latter trio will do well, both now and in the future, to make their pace conform to the limitations of their individual capacities to keep on the road and out of trouble.—Providence Journal.

Whose Fault?

When Little Girls Show Temper

A quarrelsome child is a sick child, mothers! A bad bowel condition means bad behavior. And it doesn't help matters to give bilious boys and girls some powerful cathartic that upsets them for days. When you see a coated tongue, dull or yellowed eyes, or other signs of sluggishness, there's always a way to cleanse and sweeten that little system without violence; next day you have a happy, contented child. This common-sense treatment

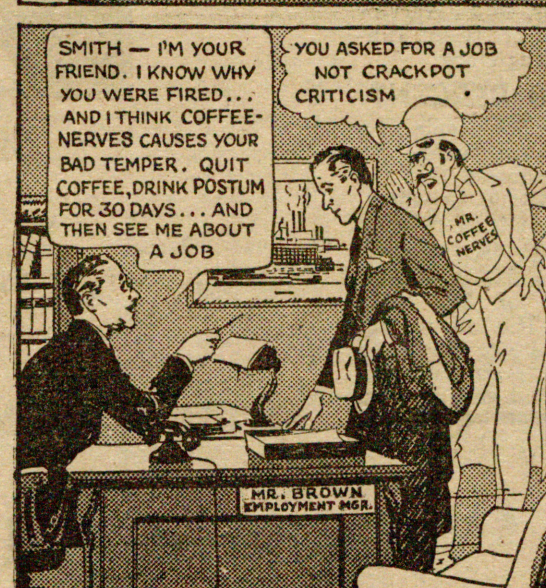

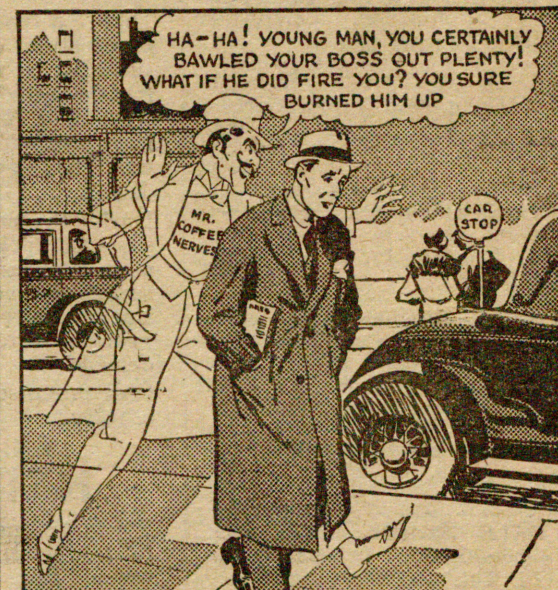

Good health and good behavior go hand in hand. With inner health, come smiling faces and sunny dispositions. And it's really so simple a matter to keep children's bowels regular. The only "medicine" most youngsters ever need to promote thorough bowel action is pure California Syrup of Figs. The senna in this fine, fruity laxative never weakens them, or takes away their appetite. But get real California Syrup of Figs; you can get it anywhere; it isn't expensive.

The Family Quilt

When a family preserves records of its history, it is generally done in the family Bible or album, says the Boston Post. But a woman in Sussex, Wis., hit upon a strange family record. She made a quilt of transparent silk. Under the silk pieces she sewed old records, letters and family mementos. The records can be read through the silk and are well preserved.

MOKENA

Six cousins from Chicago spent Thursday with Mrs. J. V. Hall and helped her quilt. Mrs. D. M. Lockwood of New Lenox and Mrs. Walker of Lincoln Estate, sister-in-laws and a niece, Mrs. Wm. Lockwood, also were present. A lovely time was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rinke entertained their card club at their home Monday evening.

Mokena will be represented in the Will county-Ottawa A. C. tournament for girls. Lauffer, Muehler, Jungles, Horras and Evelyn and Madeline Wachter will carry the colors for Mokena.

SCHOOL NEWS

The primary room is very attractively decorated with dutch people, tulips, and windmills. In the sandtable they have made a Dutch village. There is a canal bordered on one side by three rows of tulips. Between the rows many dutch girls are walking. On the other side of the canal is a dog cart filled with milk cans, a girl herding geese, and some other dutch boys and girls. One boy is fishing from the canal in which a sailboat is floating. On the windows are tulips and dutch boys and girls.

Charlene Folkers is a new pupil in first grade, transferred from the Frankfort school.

Friday afternoon Miss Doig's room will present the one act play "The Pet Show". Those taking part are: Virginia Nebeker, Bobby Homering, Marlys Krapp, Hyacinth Rinke, Gordon Benson, Gordon Clevenger, Kenneth Benson, Deletta Werner, Dorothy DeValk and Donald Smith.

The intermediate room has a bowl of jonquills in each window, dutch scenes above the front board, and border of colored mounted tulips decorate the back of the room. The children made the windmills, dutch men, women, and children, and dogs pulling milk carts.

A lily which the sixth, seventh and eighth grade have been tending and watching for two years burst into bloom last week, much to the delight of the pupils. It has two coral-colored blossoms.

Erickson Endorses

Tax Payers League And Principals

Attorney Gustaf B. Erickson, who is conducting an active campaign for the Republican nomination for county judge, is the only candidate for public office in Will county who has thus far publicly announced that, if elected, he will favor the adoption of county governmental reforms advocated by the Will County Taxpayers' League.

"During the last few years," Attorney Erickson said, "there has been a great renewal of interest on the part of the average citizen in governmental affairs and I believe this is a healthy sign. If elected to the office of county judge, I pledge that I will use my influence to put into effect reforms in county government sought by the taxpayers' league."

Mr. Erickson has practiced law in Will county for 13 years. He served as assistant attorney general under Oscar E. Carlstrom and also as chairman of both the Will County and Joliet Township Republican Central committees. He has never before sought an elective public office.

Mr. Erickson will be heard in the third of a series of campaign talks from WCLS at 7:15 o'clock, Friday night.

County Makes A Decided Cut

The Will County Board of Supervisors at their meeting Monday by resolution lopped off $63,900 from the sum of $137,970 for the payment of interest and principal becoming due in 1934 on the $1,750,000 hard road bond issue. The resolution is as follows:

WHEREAS, at the last September meeting of the County Board of Will County there was adopted an appropriation ordinance for the year 1934 in which it was provided that there be levied the sum of $137,970 for the payment of interest and principal becoming due in said revenue year on the $1,750,000 Hard Road Bond Issue, and also providing that there be levied an additional sum of $63,900 for the payment of interest and maturing principal on the Emergency Relief Bond Issue, and

WHEREAS, at the time of the voting of said Emergency Relief Bond Issue in the sum of $249,000 it was the intention of the Board of Supervisors that said bond issue and interest thereon be retired from the motor fuel tax fund; and,

WHEREAS, since that date, the act under which said Emergency Relief Bonds were issued has been amended by the legislature, so that it is not now possible to divert motor fuel tax money for the payment of interest or maturing principal on said Emergency Relief Bonds; and,

WHEREAS, this Board desires to carry out as far as possible its original intention and provide so far as possible for the payment and retirement of interest and principal on said Emergency Relief Bonds without increasing the tax burden on the tax payers of Will County.

NOW THEREFORE, be it hereby resolved that Albion F. Delander, County Clerk of Will County, Illinois, be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to reduce the amount levied by said appropriation ordinance for providing funds to pay interest and maturities on the $1,750,000 Hard Road Bond Issue by the sum of $63,900.

The board is to be complimented on their voluntary action in the matter.

CYO Notes

Tinley Community

Gospel News

The Tinley Park Community Gospel Services will be privileged to have one of the committeemen from the Christian Business Men's Committee, who conduct the noon day services in Chicago, broadcast over radio station WMBI every day, for their speaker next Sunday.

The meetings are held in the community hall. Services start 7:45 p. m. with a rousing song service at which the congregation has the right to select any old hymns that they are especially fond of. Special music is also on the program for all the meetings.

Morning Star Mission

Has Busy Month

Supt. Peter McCarthy of the famous Morning Star Mission in Joliet makes the following report about the Mission's work for February:

Conversions 33; free meals 1615; free beds 398; free clothing to 52 persons; free New Testaments 4; free gospels 15; police court and jail visits 24; relief to 15 families; paid railroad fares for 4 persons; helped lady to her mother's funeral; gave 140 gals. milk to the mothers and the children.

The don't care spirit is passing. One traveler left the testimony that since coming to the Mission he got a clean mind, pious heart and a full stomach.

COMPLIMENTS OF

Richard J. BARR

State Senator 41st District

To reach a position of power in political life is natural evidence of superior character, for in our political system there is one potential interest that counts—personality. By that we mean everything that makes up a man's character, and above all, trustworthiness. It is not the primrose path of dalliance that one treads to step softly into the shoes of the man who is a State Senator. These remarks apply fittingly to Senator Barr of Joliet, who seeks renomination and re-election on the Republican Ticket, and the reader has, no doubt, already guessed that much; for no citizen of Joliet is better known. Being a State Senator is a large order to fill and Senator Barr's executive qualifications in administering his office have been such as to well merit commendation.

J. V. McCARTHY

Of Joliet

Candidate for Democratic Nomination for State Senator 41st District

J. V. McCarthy of Joliet, urged by his many friends and acquaintances, has announced his candidacy for the nomination of State Senator in the 41st District at the coming spring primary on the Democratic ticket.

J. V. McCarthy has always been known as a worthy citizen and is well known, not only in Joliet, but through out the entire 41st District, and is held in esteem by his friends, who are enthusiastic in their support of his candidacy.

Mr. McCarthy is running on the platform of efficient and economical administration. The great deflation demands that we have men in office who are working to this end and no doubt J. V. McCarthy would serve the people well.

In this review we are glad to complement Mr. McCarthy upon the reception his announcement has created and would suggest that all take his candidacy into consideration when in the booth at the primary.
